

TUBERCULOSIS HOSPITAL.

His. Or, if the people want more clinics, let them issue bonds and build them all over the county, to the county lines. But, by all means, declare the county a district and give the firm the aid that will build the hospital and keep it going.

Dr. J. W. Harned, city health officer, made a short talk, in which he pointed out the great need of the hospital, emphasizing the importance of a place where persons having consumption, in the incipient or more advanced stages can be treated.

At a little after 12 o'clock the meeting adjourned to meet at 1:30.

The court met in the afternoon and passed a resolution endorsing the plan of the county medical society and (they) expressing themselves as favoring immediate action, but as the levy for 1913-14 has already been made, they see no way of raising the money until next year. Consequently the court deferred further action until the first of next April.

Is This Treason?

On a tombstone erected at Fancy Gap, near Hillsville, Va., is this remarkable inscription:

"Sacred to the memory of Claude Allen and his father, who were judicially murdered in the penitentiary March 13, 1913 over the protest of 100,000 citizens of the State of Virginia. Placed here by a friend and a citizen of Virginia."

McCracken Patient.

Mrs. Madara E. Clark, a patient at the Western State Hospital, from McCracken county, died of pelagra, aged 57 years. She was born in Illinois and had been here about four years. The body was shipped to Paducah.

Here's The Limit

Within fifteen minutes after he had saved Lewis Phillips from drowning, William Zarembry one of the oldest citizens of Taylorsport, Ky., was shot and killed by the man whom he had rescued.

CARDS HAD PREDICTED TRULY

Foretold Good Fortune Coming to New York Woman, and the Next Day It Came.

For fifteen years Mrs. Nellie Cousins told her fortune with cards, never losing confidence in their efficacy. For fifteen years she went about her employment in stores in order to help her husband maintain their little home.

At night after her work was cleared away she went back to the faithful old deck of cards. Sometimes the cards ran good for her, sometimes not. But when she turned up the five and ten of diamonds six times in succession on a recent Sunday night she was overjoyed.

"Our fortune is going to change," she told her husband, according to the New York Sun. "I know it is. The cards tell me so and the cards do not lie."

Confirmation was not long delayed. A special delivery carrier came knocking at her door the following Monday morning. Mrs. Cousins took the letter. It was from an attorney in Philadelphia. It told her she was heir to the $15,000 estate of Mrs. Carrie Drexel, Philadelphia, an aunt.

Mrs. Cousins, who is sixty years old, had not heard from her aunt in fifteen years.

She put the letter aside and went to her work. She will finish out the week despite the fact that the fortune is enough to keep her in comfort the rest of her life.

FRIENDLY TIP

"My husband always is the severest critic of the gowns I wear."

"Well, judging from what I have heard, he has to go some if he is."

WOULD WORK BOTH WAYS.

"There's no logic in love," said Dr. H. Mitchell Wilson, the Denver eugenicist, as he drank in the self-impregnated air of an Atlantic City pier.

Dr. Wilson, gazing absently at a school of porpoises tumbling in their graceful way in the blue and sunlit water, chuckled and continued:

"Two young people sat on the beach the other night. Moonlight whitened the sand. The sea in the moonlight was like frosted silver. The young girl, mystically beautiful beneath those calm rays, said:

"How do you know I can make you happy?"

"Because," groaned the young man, "you make me so miserable."

PROPER PLACE.

"Where are you going, my daughter?"

"I am going to where you said they had those wash sales to get a tub suit."

SUSPENDED ANIMATION.

"I'm tired of life."

"In that case, why don't you spend the summer in the country, old chap?"

ITS LOCATION.

"Pop, will you tell me one thing?"

"Yes, son. What is it?"

"Are the teeth of a gale ever found in the mouth of a river?"

ALL SHE GOT.

"She married him for a home?"

"Did she get it?"

"No. The best he could provide is a five-room flat on the sixth floor."

ONLY RELIEF.

"I shouldn't cry if I were you, little man."

"Must do summing; I bean't old enough to swear."—Punch.

CONTRARIWISE.

"What a tall man Jaggeby is."

"Yes, and at the same time he is always short."

WIT and HUMOR

STRATEGY OF GEORGIA YOUTH

Resorted to Cute Artifice to Gain Possession of His Uncle's Pet Newfoundland Dog.

Representative Tom Bell of Georgia, one of the assistant "whips" of the lower house, has a favorite nephew, aged ten. Also he has a Newfoundland dog which he cherishes more than he does his job.

The nephew also thinks a lot of the dog. In fact, he has suggested more than once to his uncle that Rags—that being the dog's name—would be most acceptable as a gift. A few weeks ago, indeed, tired of beating about the bush, he came right out and asked for the dog. But he was refused.

"You see," said Bell, "I have to keep Rags to guard the house when I'm not here. If I give him to you I wouldn't have anybody to keep bad men away."

The nephew pondered over this remark long and earnestly, and finally went home wrapped in thought.

The next day he was back again.

"Uncle Tom," said he innocently, "do you believe in prayer?"

Representative Bell fervently declared that he did.

"Well—well—if if you pray hard enough for anything do you think God would give it to you?"

"Yes," said Bell, "I think he would."

"Even a dog?" inquired the nephew, still innocently.

Bell hesitated, but it was no time to waver; and so, firmly, he replied, "Yes, even a dog."

"Then," said the nephew, triumphantly, "then you just give me your dog and you pray for another one!"—Washington Star.

Lesson From the Past.

The agent of the accident insurance company had tackled Noah.

"According to your own story, uncle," he said, "you are going to be afloat in a short time in a ship built on dry land, without any motive power, and you don't know a thing about sailing a vessel, anyhow. You can't tell what may happen to you. Don't you think you'd better take out some accident insurance?"

"Young man," said Noah, "I've lived to be 600 years old and I'll be still alive when you and your insurance company have perished from the face of the earth. Will you please step off the gangplank? You're in the way of the animals that are trying to come aboard."

Noah, as we learn from the records, was no victim of misplaced confidence, either. He lingered 350 years after this incident.

A STARTER.

The Youth—Don't you think you could learn to love me?

The Maid—Wait until I see the engagement ring.

Considerate Spouse.

Rich Old Husband—I admit that you come of a famous family, while I belong to the newly rich, but is that any reason why you should always be indirectly reminding folks of that fact?

Charming Young Wife—If I how?

Rich Old Husband—You are forever talking about your ancestors.

Charming Young Wife—Really, my dear, you do me injustice. My reason for keeping people reminded of my great-grandfather is to make you seem younger by contrast.

Keeping the Hopper Full.

"There's only one trouble with our legislature," said Farmer Cornstossel.

"What is that?"

"Too industrious. It kin think up more laws than you could obey in a lifetime."

Old-Fashioned Cure.

"Sore throat, eh? Get your wife to give you one of her old stockings to wrap around your neck."

"Tried that and it did me no good. She had nothing but those new-fangled openworks."

FEW REMINDERS OF DICKENS

Places and Characters of London Which Great Novelist Made Famous Are Vanishing Fast.

The day for studying the London of Dickens has gone by. The last ten years have completely wiped away the familiar signposts of Dickens' land.

The Dickens lover used to find pleasure in showing people where Bill Sikes and Nancy roamed, where Oliver Twist held forth and Mr. Pickwick and his devoted followers gave ground for the world's merriment; but even the old streets have disappeared and new ones have come in their place, running sometimes in opposite directions.

There is more of Thackeray's Georgian London than of Dickens' Victorian, though even the old Georgian era has been defaced and buckled terribly by the modern flat and giant hotel.

It is only a few years ago since one saw Dickens' characters at every turn in the by-streets of London. But they are very rare nowadays, and when they do appear they attract attention in the light of echoes of by-gone days. And it could not be otherwise.

SEEKING HELP

"How are you at picture puzzles?"

"Pretty fair."

"Maybe you can put together these forty-odd parts I have taken out of my automobile."

GOLD BURIED 2,500 YEARS.

Gold, 2,500 years old, was recently found at Eberswalde, a little town about an hour's journey north of Berlin, Germany. In an earthenware vessel, a few inches high, 78 articles made of massive gold, and consisting of bracelets, drinking cups, rings, etc., have been found. Considering the length of time they have been buried, they are in an excellent state of preservation. One learned specialist declares that they are the work of the early Germanic inhabitants of the district. Another holds that they are decidedly of Phoenician origin, and reminds us that these enterprising traders penetrated into the interior of Germany from the Baltic more than 2,500 years ago.

WELL DRUGGED.

A doctor was summoned to a police station to examine an unconscious prisoner. The prisoner, very muddy and disheveled, lay on the floor of the cell. The physician bent over and examined him, and then, rising, said, in a loud, stern voice:

"This man's condition is not due to drink. He has been drugged."

A policeman turned pale, and said, in a timid, hesitating voice:

"I'm afraid you're right, sir. I drugged him all the way—a matter of a hundred yards or more."—Weekly Telegraph.

Smith—Yes; he's one of the ciphers.—Illinois Siren.

MADE BY DISSOLUTION.

Mantell—I had no idea that Banks was worth more than ten millions.

Dunlop—He wasn't until the government dissolved his trust.

HIS STATUS.

"My good woman, is your son an adolescent?"

"No'm; he's a cart driver."

ITS KIND.

"I see where one baseball man gave another one a hard wallop."

"Yes; that was a base hit."
